FOR MONG SAN PING

WITH FLORA LEONG

Hairstyle

The diamond shaped face is the rarest of face shapes, and is defined by a narrow forehead, wide cheekbones and a narrow chin. Diamond shaped faces are usually narrower at the eye line and jaw line, with high and often dramatic cheekbones.

Diamonds are forever - 7 good men's hairstyles for diamond-shaped faces

- Long sweeping fringe.
- Textured crop.
- Classic side parting.
- Man bun.
- Buzz cut.
- Pompadour.
- Long slick back.

Note: You want the top to be a bit longer than the sides, but don't make this contrast too drastic. For instance, avoid close fades on the sides. Having a bit more length on the sides will broaden the otherwise narrow forehead.

Glasses

- Glasses are good accessories for men to create a statement without talking.
- It also tells others who you are or stand out.
- You can use it as a conversation starter.
- You are a Diamond Shape Face.

Tubular Body Types of Men

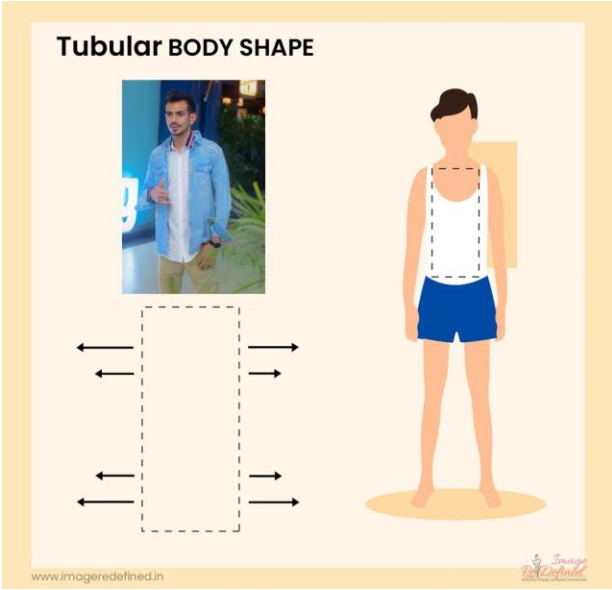

Do you have a very slim figure with no clear waist and almost the same measures for shoulders, waist, and hip? Then you have a tubular body. Though you could improve your body type with proper diet and exercise, you can still have a unique style statement if you know what to do.

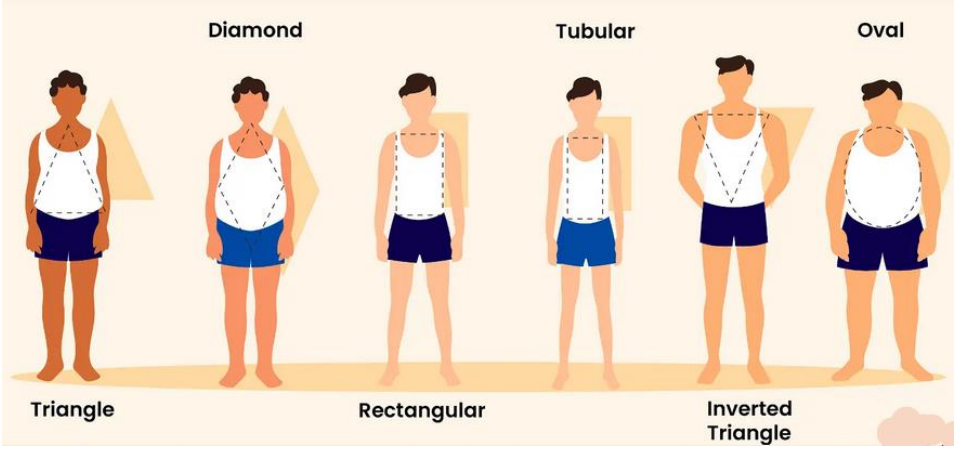

Style Aim to Counter a Tubular Body Shape

- Minimize your slender appearance
- Emphasize everywhere
- Lead attention close to the face
- Fill out above and below the waist with loose-fitting clothes

Pro Tips from Image Consultant:

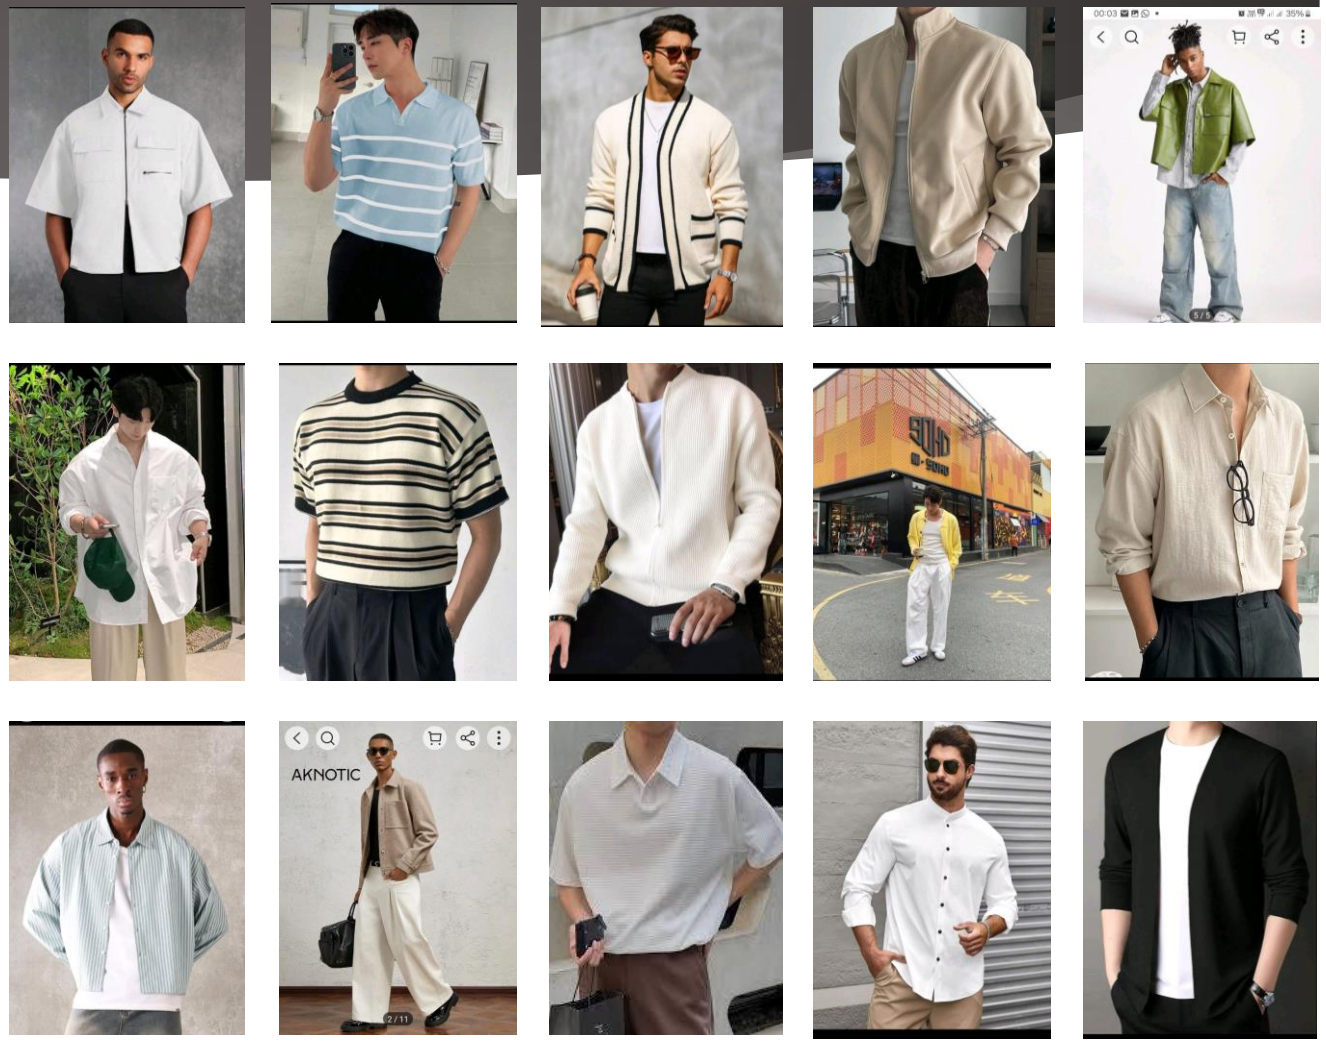

- You need to increase the visible bulk of the torso. Add bulk to your top areas with an extra layer (Like loose jackets, blazers, pullovers) and prefer pleated trousers.

Basic Tops

- Layering – Layering is a good idea, as it's adding more clothing to your body, giving you a wider appearance. You can layer with slim fitting clothing, which will ensure you keep your body shape, without looking like a beanpole.
- Horizontal Stripes – Horizontal stripes can also help you look that little bit wider. My favourite nautical stripes will work well in this case, not only a great idea to wear, but also a brilliant option for the Summer.
- Colours – Using colours in your shirts or tees is a great idea, and with bright colours which pop you'll give off a more dynamic look, and a younger feel.

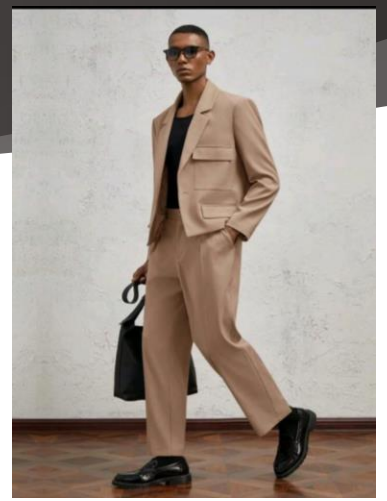

Suits

- Tailored Suit – Get a suit which is tailored and has plenty of structure to it, to make you look sharp.
- Off the shelf Suit – 2 ways to dress:

  1. You can look for something more smart casual feel so that the jacket can go with most of your bottoms, and it can be used as your everyday work wear instead of cardigan.

  2. You can afford to be more street/or chic in your suits if you are daring effort. Giving you the more creative side of your personality.

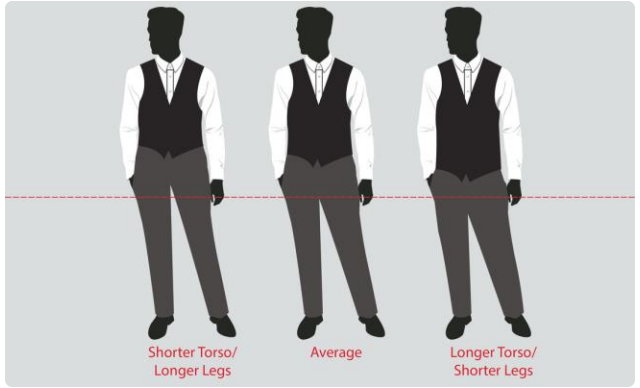

Bottoms

- Longer torso's should avoid 1 button jackets. When the jacket is fastened it creates an elongated V of the shirt, that only accentuates the longer torso.
  Instead a high 2 button jacket, 3 button or a double breasted will work better with your proportions.
- For a casual tailored outfit a check jacket with defined horizontal stripes will create the same breaks in the top half as straight pockets.
  Team it with a darker trouser than the jacket, as this will also help to lengthen the leg.
- A higher buttoning waistcoat or a double breasted, is better for longer torsos.
  In the same way we looked at for jackets, it avoids the elongated V of the shirt that makes the torso look longer.
- Another trouser trick is to slim the knee only, creating a "barely there" bootcut.
  This also affords your trousers to be cut slightly longer, without unsightly bunching on the top of your shoe.
- Things to avoid:
- Cuffs on pants create an unwanted break
- Wider leg pants will make your short legs look even shorter
- Striped shirts or jackets will make the long torso longer
- When dressing casually tuck in your shirt

Bottoms

1. Visually lengthen your legs but tucking in your shirt – so simple and yet so overlooked! This nips in your waist and shows off that snatched body (OK PURRRR) and also makes your body look visually shorter and thus makes your legs look longer!

2. While tucked in, fake where your waist starts! The idea and goal is always the same – the long leg agenda. Most of my bottoms are high waisted so that i can fake where my waist starts, creating a longer proportion for my legs.

3. Don't be afraid of showing a little a bit of skin. (No, i'm not suggesting the ah lian booty cut shorts)

Keeping the ends of your shorts above the knee keeps the illusion of longer legs. I find that weird lengths like bermuda shorts or like anything after the knee cuts off your body in a very weird and unflattering way if you don't have the legs for it.

Tips

Invest on yourself!

How are men being assessed?

Other than how they dress; men assess one another on a few things:

1. The watch they wear. - invest on 1 evergreen expensive watch.

2. The belt they wear. - invest on a branded belt. Ideally, versitale look.

3. The shoes they wear. - Invest in 1 pair of branded business shoes and 1 pair of branded casual shoes.

4. Lastly, the car they drive.
